

Reviewers, year 2023

The process to publish an article includes not only the work of the author but also the work of other specialists in charge of the evaluation, correction, and publication of the draft article. Since revisions are double-blind procedures, the role of the reviewers isn't normally appreciated by the scientific community, and most of the times they don't get enough credit for their work. The American Review of Respiratory Medicine wants to list the names of those who participated in the revision of all the work published this year, as a thank-you to the specialists who collaborated generously throughout 2022, devoting their time and effort to improving the academic quality of its content.

Abrate, Vanesa
Alchapar, Ramón
Auteri, Santiago
Bevilacqua, Carlos
Corroto, Matías
De Vito, Eduardo Luis
Esteva, Hugo
Folco, Javier

García, Artemio
Gil, Beatríz
Lamot, Sebastián
Larrateguy, Luis Darío
Mattarucco, Walter
Montiel, Guillermo
Mora, Andrea
Palmero, Domingo

Pendito, Raquel
Peña, David
Portas, Tamara
Putruele, Ana
Rey, Darío
Saadia, Marcela
Svetliza, Graciela
Vázquez, Bibiana
Wustten, Sebastián